This VS1843 mohur was not struck for circulation, but was almost certainly a very special piece ordered by Ghulab Singh Bhangi, the seventh chief of Bhangi Misl, for presentation for a chief official or for a member of his own family. It was produced from the same dies used for silver rupee, and the actual production was either just one piece or a very small group, of which this is first reported piece. Unlisted by both Herlli and Gurprit Singh, it is of the same type as the silver rupees of type 01.05 and 01.09, respectively. The mounting indicated that this was made to be worn, most likely, attached to a neckless worn by the receiver. Thus it served the same function as a nazarana mohur.
